The cost of membership in the order ot stated, but we presume that it is substantially the same as in other similar ese organizations springing up over the country that we may properly refer to features of our day. They illustrate the wide spread attempt that is making to solve the problem as to how en who have only a small salary or daily wages to depend on can provide for their families after death.

The old insurance companies have pro vided a way for persons of considerable neans to secure something handsome for recessities of those who can only spare a few dollars per annum out of their earnings. Such persons must leave their families unprovided for unless they can se ething through the medium of cheap system of life insurance. This cheap system the organizations not springing up aim to furnish.

It is urged as an objection to these ganizations that they cannot afford permanent security to those who insure in them, because they have little or no reserve fund. distinguishing feature, however, is that they levy on each member when there is a death, and thus, as they claim, avoid the necessity for a reserve fund. duet, "Moonlight Music," &c., sung by Mrs. Storer and Miss Pet Ferrel. Mrs. Storer sang with her usual strength and clearness of voice, and Miss Pet was not a whit behind her in carrying her part. The last of part first was "Air from Rode's Opera," violin and piano, played by Mr. D. Maxwell and Miss Pet Ferrel. Mr. Dan. played in a brilliant and correct style; the piece was difficult, but he mastered it. Miss Pet deserves a great deal of credit for her correct time in all her accompanied nearly all of the pieces. Part second was ushered in by a quintette, "Where Winds Breathe Soft," sung by Mrs. Storer, Miss Todd, Messrs. G. Sisson, and Maxwell. The leading voice was first tenor, carried by Mr. G. Sisson, and you need only to hear him snee to be convinced that he has an extraordinary tenor voice. The others did credit to themselves also, as it was a difficult piece. Next a solo (piano), "Gasti de Cœur," played by Miss Allie Cacraft. Miss Allie played without notes and seemed to be well acquainted with the piece. Next song and chorus, "The Old Tramp," sung by Misses Carter and Cracraft, and Mr. Maxwell. We cannot forbear remarking on Miss Lizie's articulation. It was so good that those sitting the farthest back heard every word. Next

Pet at the piano. This piece, as well as I their first, was encored, and was responded to by Mr. Dan, playing "Home, Sweet Home," in his usual pleasing style. Mr. of George Maxwell brought down the house by appearing in a blue swallow-tail cost rot "ye olden time," light pants, light stove-pipe hat, prodigious neck tie, and carrying a cane. He sang "Mr. Philander Brown." Mr. Maxwell is rather inclined to be comical at any time, and be did the part of Mr. Philander to perfection. Next song, trio, "Restless Sea;" sang by Mrs. Storer and Mesars. Sisson and D. Maxwell. This piece was grand and very much admired by all. Next, cornet and piano, "concert fantsais," played by Mr. J. S. Todd and Miss Maggie Todd. This was a little tedious but very pretty. They closed with a full chorus in the anthem, "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow." And we sincerely hope they will favor us with another at some future time. The ladies were all dreezed in good taste, and of course, looked their pretiest. The gentlemen looked handsome, the ushers were polite and attentive to their business. the audience behaved with their brainess. proper decorum, and altogether every-thing passed off agreeably to all and what is still better a very neat little sum was realized for the benefit of the M. THEORY TO POSTMASTER.

The Third Assistant Postmaster General has a bill prepared for consideration by Congress. The bill proposes an important change in regulating the pay of a fourth class Postmaster, or all whose annual compensation is less than $1,000. It provides that the basis of their compensation shall be the face value of stamps cancelled in their respective offices instead of the value of stamps cancelled in their respective offices instead of the value of atamps and by them. It also imposes several penalties for making false returns and for traficking in stamps. The present mode of adjusting the salaries of the Presidential Postmasters will be left substantially unchanged. The bill embodies the recomdations of Postmaster General Key in his last annual report and will be, by him, sent to Congress at an early date.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 19.—The special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to-day to consider the financial measures now before Congress was attended by the leading bankers and merchants. It was resolved that the efforts now being made to remonetize silver and postpone resumption appear to be reactionary in spirit, and are designed to reverse the action taken at a time when the intelligence and wealth of the South were not represented in Congress, but when her material interests were peculiarly exposed to depreciation. That it cannot possibly be honest for the government after what has passed to pay its bonds or notes in anything but gold, and that it is shameful to permit by law and even to encourage by National legislation the payment of public, corporate and private debts in a debased coings specially and avowedly created for the purpose.

TILDEN'S FIRST INCOME TAX VICTORY.

NEW YORK, January 19.—Arguments in the case of the United States vs. Saml.

J. Tilden, to recover $3,000 as an annual income tax for the year 1861, with interest from the 30th of June, 1862, were begun this morning in the United States District Court. There are nine counts in complaint, to all of which the demurrer is made on technical grounds. The merits of the case not being gone into, it was is made on technical grounds. Attendering its of the case not being gone into, it was decided to take up each count separately. The first count charges $3,000 back tax for the fiscal years 1861-'62. Tilden's counsel claim that the laws passed about that time were recognized as necessary war measures and annuled the law requiring the payment of income tax in quiring the payment of income tax in that year. Judge Blackford sustained the demurrer giving Tilden the first vic-
